

Yellow-rumped Thornbill

Acanthiza chrysorrhoa

On the Bluff

All year round

Commonly known as "tom tits" or "butter-bums", these small Yellow-rumped Thornbills show a flash of yellow on the rump when they fly. They prefer to be near trees or bushes, but spend much of their time feeding on the ground. Look for them in short grass, such as on the football ground or around the caravan park.

Beak-to-bill: 11 – 12 cm

Brown Thornbill

Acanthiza pusilla

The small Brown Thornbill is reasonably common, but not well recognised. The chest and throat have striations of dark streaks and the crown and rump are tawny brown. They make a pleasant song as small family groups flitter about in the bushy undergrowth of the Bluff or search for insects in the foliage of trees.

Beak-to-Bill: 9 – 10 cm
